

Table with multiple columns containing company names, codes, and financial data. The table is organized into several vertical sections, likely representing different categories of companies or financial metrics. The text is dense and spans the majority of the page.