Table with multiple columns containing financial data, including company names, stock codes, and various financial metrics. The table is organized into several sections, with the first section labeled '(上接C19版)'. It contains numerous rows of data, likely representing a list of companies and their associated financial information.