

(上接C23版)

Table with multiple columns containing company names, codes, and financial data. The table is organized into several vertical sections, each starting with a company name and code. The data includes various financial metrics such as revenue, profit, and assets. The table is dense and covers a wide range of companies and their financial performance.